G. W. V. A. COLUMN

With the 11th of November coming round again every one, man, woman and child in Canada, in the whole world in fact, should pause and think what an eventful day that was in their lives.

Without going into details the 11th of November was the climax, the crowning glory of 4½ years of the most strenuous fighting in Europe that has ever been witnessed.

Forgotten were all the miseries, the cold, filth and fatigue. Nothing else mattered, we had won.

The beginning of the end started on that eventful August 8th.

At 4.21 on a cool autumn morning a vast array of infantry leapt to the attack, simultaneously an enormous weight of artillery, tanks, and planes flashed into lift—irresistible.

From then on it was one triumphal progress, everywhere the British army, Canadian, American, French, all the Allies moved forward, some days very slowly some days on the trot. over all the old battlefields on into green fields untouched by the slimy hand of destruction.

At las, November 11th a peculiar feeling was in the air. Staff cars flashed up and down the line and we all sensed the unusual.

At 11 minutes to 11 the most unheard of all commands, "Cease fire Stand down" I firmly believe that it was too big an event for the mind of an average soldier to grasp. It left us all a little dazed and we noted with surprise that instead of the hilarious delight that should have greeted this event, the troops solemnly shook hands, and felt into little groups talking in whispers.

The joyous outburst came afterwards, during our triumphal march through Belgium and France.

The genuine joy of the liberated civilians more than repaid the most of us who had been wondering for 4½ long weary years just what it was all about.

The G.W.V. have these events burnt into their very hearts and although they seem to be carrying on as usual every man feels grateful for his deliverance

And although we intend to celebrate last, November 11th a peculiar joy is somewhat subdued by the ever-present thought of the unnumbered dead who paid the price and made such an event possible.

In Flanders Fields

In Flanders fields the poppies blow between the crosses, row on row, That mark our place; and in the sky

The larks, still bravely singing fly, Scarce heard amidst the guns below. We are the dead. Short days ago We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset's glow, Loved and were loved, and now we lie In Flanders fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe! To you from failing hands we throw The torch. Be yours to hold it high! If ye break faith with us who die,

We shall not sleep, though poppies grow In Flanders fields.

We shall not sleep, though poppies grow In Flanders fields, In Flanders fields

RIBSTONE WOMENS INSITUTE FAIR WAS GREAT SUCCESS

The Fall Fair held at Ribstone, Saturday Novemebr 1st proved to be a decided success. Day, and indeed for two weeks prior to the occasion was not sufficient to cool the ardor of the promoters, or of intending exhibitors.

There were in all 170 entres made and the quality of the exhibits reflect much credit to the producers. Needlework and cooking were of a first class stanoard and in several sections provided no light task for the judge, Mrs Aitken. The judge and visitors alike had many commendatory remarks to pass, as was also the case in the vegetable classes.

Mrs Aitkens was assisted in the judging by Mr L. L. Pound, who was requested to judge the Vegetable, Grain and Poultry classes. From early morning until the close at five o'clock there was a good crowd of people around, and everyone seemed to be in the best of spirits and jolly.

It is most gratifying to record the success of this venture of the Ribstone Womens Insitute. Running an agricultural fair is not such an easy piece of work as it may at the first sight appear to be; and for a small band of less than twenty women to make this venture is no small task. Considerable work, directed by careful organization is requisite, and in addition, considerable financial risk is incurred. That our Ribstone Ladies have succeeded in face of inclement weather, entitles them to great praise. Their efforts proved them to be sincere in their adaptation of the motto "For Home and Country" some-thing you had to have if you lived on the prairie, 'and so say all of us'.

News has filtered down from the College at Edmonton that T. H. MacAllister, has been allowed to pass a term in the shouder-boa syof term in theology for his war services. This decision shows that the Professors, or what everybody granted thte relief, are blessed with a sense of the fitness of things. However, "Mac55 having a long array of other subjects to study, will be kept burning the midnight oil, for all that.

Mr. Oliver Levesque left on Saturday for Edmbonton. He intends having Mrs. Levesque and baby daughter with him on the return trip.

Mr. Corriveau has been threshing in R. J. Felton's district, in Killarney this fall, R. J. having become too proud to thresh, since he took to having a bunch of Holsteins, and a granary full of rye. In spite of 'tough' conditions both of weather and grain, Mr. Corriveau threshed steadily on, and made a most satisfactory showing in the cleanness of the grain.

He has now completed this part of the district with the exception of the Eringobragh crop, which its owner says "can take no harm, it being attacked after a 'swell fashion, for which he intends taking out a patent, if so be he does not go down to old Ontario next fall. He expects also to have the best threshing weather oof any yet, and as there's nothing too good for the Irish, probably he'll get a chinook, sent along, Here's hoping he will, then we'll all benefit, and have a chance to feel warm again

OUR SERIAL STORY

CHAPTER 33

Tad Is On The Inside Track

Mr. Jordan was just beginning to unhitch Vixen when Tad appeared at the gate.

'Hello, Dad, so you're back; anything doing?'

'No, my boy, I'm afraid not, you'll have to make my old racquet do for a while, but I'll see what we can do after the tournament; perhaps I can get you a good second-hand one, and I may be able to help you out with a dollar or two. I'm sorry, but I warned you not to expect too much.'

'Oh, it's all right, Dad,' and Tad busied himself with the straps on the other side of the mare that his disappointment might not be too evident. 'I knew it was an off chance—why, when I was at the Dingle last Fall, Dugald wouldn't take a half day off his work for the chicken shooting—not even the first day of the season, mind you, and the Dingle Barnardo boy told me at Easter that he never even went courting Miss Enderby unless it was a Sunday or a wet day—I wish he'd got Daisy instead of her sister, there would be something doing when she wanted a new dress.'

'I guess it's best as it is, Tad, and you can put the mare away while I go in and get some supper, for afternoon tea is not very satisfying—where's mother and everybody?'

'Oh, mother and the girls are over at the tennis courts, but mother left the supper things on the table in case you wanted any—and oh, Dad, there's a letter for you on your study table, from the old country with a swell crest on it—mother thinks it's from the Dennis's father in Ireland.'

'All right, Tad, I'll find it; you may as well fix up Vixen for the night before you come in, she's not too warm to have a pail of water and she does not need any more oats, she's too gay as it is,' and Mr. Jordan walked off to the house and into his study. He picked up the letters lying on the table, two or three obviously bills and the other—yes, it was from Tom Dennis's father from the Connemara post-mark. The parson did not open it at once, but took it with him into the dining-room and laid it down unopened while he cut himself some cold meat and brought in the teapot from the kitchen stove—he would read it while he had his supper. He felt no curiosity about it, though he had vaguely wondered at its being so thick and heavy when he first picked it up, and he did not expect it would be cheerful reading. He had written to Mr. Dennis a letter of condolence when the news came of Tom's death, and this of course was the answer. He left the letter lying while he ate his cold meat, and then spreading himself some bread and butter and pouring out a second cup of tea, he pushed his chair half back from the table and took up the letter—it certainly was unusually bulky—probably he wanted to settle up the affairs of the boys' farm; it was not likely Jack would ever come back to the West—as well as noto, for he was not fitted for it—but the parson sighed as he cut the envelope open and drew out its contents, so many Old Country boys had come into his life and dropped out again—too often with failure and disaster of some kind, but this was the saddest ending of them all.

As he opened out the letter a second smaller envelope fell out, and as he read its superscription all his reminiscent sadness vanished—'Entrusted to Mr. Jordan for Miss Evelyn Raye, from Tom's mother'—matters must have gone further then with Tom and Evelyn than he had dreamt of, and the poor girl had been facing her life at the Dingle all these months with a broken heart and not a soul to help written sheets for himself in a firmer stronger hand.

Mr. Jordan unconsciously squared his shoulders and pulled himself together mentally as he opened them and pressed out the creases of their folding that he might read them the better, but he had not gone beyond the first few lines when his self-controlled deliberation gave way to a startled cry—at first wondering and unbelieving—'Tom Alive!' and then repeated in a slower and deeper tone as the conviction came home. 'Tom Dennis is alive—' and then without a pause hardly to take breath he read the long letter through to the end. The parson was not usually given to the display of his emotions, but it came at the end of a long and worried day, the letter of the poor forwards between his joy at Tom's escape and his sorrow for poor Jack, so that as he ended his reading Mr. Jordan felt smothered by his conflicting feelings. He rose hastily from the table and threw open the window —there seemed no air in the room. By force of habit he put his hand in his pocket and drew out his pouch and pipe, and then filled the latter and lighted it though his fingers trembled so that he could hardly hold the match. For some minutes he had paced backwards and forwards, up and down the room, pausing now for a moment to straighten a picture that was hanging a little out of the square on the wall now to pick up one of the children's toys lying untidily on the floor. By degrees he recovered his composure and came back again to the table and sat down and re-read the letter, more slowly and deliberately this time. It was in its facts the same strange story that Tom had written in his letter to Evelyn—which was still lying in Mary Ann's bottom drawer—but as he re-read it there were questions arose in Mr. Jordan's mind which had not impressed him impressed him on his first reading. 'Why had Evelyn never received Tom's letter?—Was it some mishap in the mail service, or—' but he could not carry that question further now, he would stop at what was certain, and it was certain the letter had never reached her hands—but what did Tom's father mean by saying. I understand from my son's letter that he entrusted the secret of his attachment to your son, Tad; excuse me if I have got the name wrong, and that perhaps he can throw a little light on the situation which is still to us rather uncertain and distressing. Mr. Jordan read the sentence a second and a third time, becoming more puzzled each time. How in the world could Tad know anything about it? The probabilities of there having been an understanding between Tom and Evelyn had been discussed in the boy's presence more than once, and he had never given a sign of being in possession of any secret—surely the boy would have told his mother. For a moment Mr. Jordan was vexed to think that Tad had learned so well the lesson of being silent about what his parents talked of in the family circle; however, he could find out the truth, and going to the window he called out loudly, 'Tad, I want you, right away.'

An Irishman's Luck

'All right, Dad. I'm coming as soon as I've run the buggy into the shed.'

'Never mind the buggy, I want you now.'

A minute afterwards Tad hurried into the room.

'Why, what's the matter, Dad, you're not sick,' for he was quick to see that his father was much disturbed.

'Oh, no, Tad, but I've had a very surprising letter, and it has upset me a good deal—it's about Tom Dennis.'

'I guessed it was when I saw the post-mark—mother had half a mind not to give it to you till the morning, she knew you would be tired, and it would be sure to be kind of miserable like—'

'Well it's not quite that, Tad, but there has been a great mistake made about—about the two Dennis boys.'

'Why, what mistake. Dad—they're not both dead?'

No, No, but in the list in the paper—it was poor Jack who was killed and Tom is alive and well.'

'Tom alive!' and for a moment Tad was speechless. Tom alive! Really alive—is that true?—Oh, isn't that great!

Why—why—everything will come right again—and aren't you glad, Dad, I feel as if I could shout.

'Hush, hush, boy, remember his brother is dead, and his father and mother have had all their grieving twice over—and, Tad, there is a great deal in the letter about Tom and Miss Raye, I cannot half understand it, and his father says you can explain it all—'

'Oh, that's all right, Dad, you need not worry about that—of course, I've been on the inside track—'

'Why, what do you mean by the "inside track"? ' asked Mr. Jordan impatiently, 'insid' track of what?'

'Of this love business and all that kind of thing,' replied Tad rather awkwardly. 'It seems all rather tommy-rot since he's alive and come and do his own courting—but there was a ring I was to give her and a sort of a softish kind of message if Tom got killed and she seemed to feel too bad about it, but if she seemed to ro worry along all right I was to keep the ring and say nothing—just keep mum, you know, Dad.'

'Well, of all the commissions to entrust to a mere child like you! It's the ring, and why c'd you never say a word to Miss Raye or your mother?'

'The ring is in my pant's pocket—I wear it sometimes when I'm by myself—Tom said it was for me if I didn't give it to Miss Raye, and I've been beastly uncomfortable about it. I very nearly told her when I was up at the Dingle at Easter, but she seemed so rummy when I tried to talk to her about Tom, and said I was a cruel boy when I asked her if she wasn't sorrier it was Tom that was killed instead of Jack, and the next minute she started off laughing about some bally joke of Daisy's, and there was Mr. Bert sniffing around her all the time and she as nice to him as you please—and I just thought she didn't deserve to know that—that Mr. Tom was like that—you bet I'll never bank on another girl.'

'Well, Tad, I suppose you did what thought best, but I'm sure you were wrong in thinking Miss Raye did not care—'

'Why didn't she say so, then?' interrupted Tad rather resentfully.

'You'll grow wise in some things when you grow older, my boy,' replied his father. 'In the meantime, since you know so much you may as well know the rest. As soon as Tom discovered the dreadful mistake about the report of his death, he wrote to Miss Rays and told his own story, and if he hears by the first of July that she loves him, Mr. Jordan found his telling of a love story to his own small boy increasingly embarrassing, 'why he will come straight out here on sick leave and marry her and take her back with him to Ireland, and if she doesn't write and accept him, why he will go home to his father and mother and that will be the end of it—'

do you see?'

'But his letter to her, Dad?'

'Why, that she never goot, and, poor girl, she doesn't even know he's alive, and altogether it is rather ajumble—and I don't know what to do for the best.'

'Oh, if that's it, Dad, you leave it to me. The holidays begin on Friday, and it wouldn't matter if I missed school to-morrow and I could get a lift up north with the mailman and I could go to the Dingle and tell Miss Raye and give her the ring—that is if you're sure she hasn't gone back on Mr. Tom.'

'Oh, I'm certain enough about that, but the rest of it is not so simple, You see, Bert Enderby has asked Eve-

Winter Traffic Will Be Heavy

Winnipeg, Oct. 31st, 1919. The past few days of cold weather have resulted in an unprecedented large number of enquiries from throughout the entire prairie provinces, for tickets, sleeping car, and boat reservations being received by Grand Trunk Pacific Railway agents, from business men, farmers and others who yearly are taking more advantage of the opportunity of spending the winter Pickett, months either on the North Pacific Coast or in California. Mr. F. I. Pickett, Passenger Agent of the Admiral Line, whose boats ply between Victoria, Seattle and California ports, who was in the city yesterday, also confirms the above, stating that their line has never had so many applications for reservations and that the majority of these were apparently coming from the country districts, indicating further that the prairie farmers are seeking milder climates during the winter season and have the money to pay for the travel comfort and enjoyment that may be derived on these up-to-date transportation companies.

The Prince Rupert route, combining as it does a rail trip through the most scenic part of the Canadian Rockies plus a 700 mile ocean voyage through sheltered waters without additional cost to the passenger, strongly appeals to the winter traveller who desires to secure the best at a minimum of expense.

The advertising done by the North Pacific tention to the advantages of the States of Oregon and Washington and the Province of British Columbia, particularly from a climatic standpoint at this season of the year, has also resulted in directing attention of many to that section of our country. In addition thereto, traffic to the Old Country is restricted, and as people will travel, every opportunity is thus afforded to see something new.

Pay Envelope OF $75,000,000

Wages Earned by Money Invested In Domestic War Loans.

A pay envelope crammed with $75,000,000 is not a hard thing to take, even if it is for a year's work. This is the amount of wages earned by Canadian investors in the Victory and other war loans, rather, it is the amount earned by their money.

Close to half of this amount is to be distributed to the fortunate investors either on November 1st or December 1st just in nice time to be reinvested in Victory Loan 1919.

People get ahead financially, not by spending interest returns on everyday things but by setting the returns back to earn more interest. Money, placed that way, rolls up like a snowball.

THE GODDESS AND THE TREE

Once upon a time the gods agreed each to select a tree, and to guard and watch over it. Jupiter chose the oak, Venus the myrtle, Hercules the poplar and the others each chose a tree, Pallas, who was present, selected the olive.

"The olive shall be my tree," she said, "and my reason for choosing it is that it bears plenty of useful fruit. All the trees that you have chosen bear nothing."

Jupiter replied to her:

"Now I see that it is not without justice that you are celebrated for your wisdom, for unless there is some benefit in the things you do. It is foolish to do them for vainglory."

"Let all your actions be wise and useful."

Billy Bear: I have a bone to pick with you!

Hippo: Pardon me, sir, that's impossible—I only eat vegetables!

A GOOD TAKE IN

Have you heard this catch?

You must go up to a friend and say, "Do you know a red ten-shilling note is only worth four and six!"

When your friend replies that he doesn't believe it, you must say, "Yes it is true, four and six make ten, surely?" Then he will say how he has been caught.

THE LAD OF GRIT AND SMILES

He sang a merry lilt of cheer
 'Neath cloudy skies or blue.
 Until the folks he sojourned with
 Had learnt the rhythm too!

He donned a cloak all laughter-hued;
 A plucky garb to wear!
 And lent it readily enough,
 For neighbour hearts to share.

He kept a stock of jest and smile
 To scatter on the way;
 And those who marched beside him
 Tere

Forgot the shadows grey;

And some were young and brave and strong—

And some were tired and old;
 But one and all, he led them on
 To Hope's Fair Land of Gold!

—LILIAN GARD.

What is it that is half an animal half part of a lady's dress, and the whole of it a flower?
 A foxglove.

God has two thrones: in the highest heavens, and in the lowliest hearts.

If we want to get the laws of our country correct, measure them by the golden rule.

The Stag In The Ox-Stall

A stag, being hard pressed by hounds, took refuge in an ox-stall. One of the oxen asked him why he had fled into such a place, where he was sure to be killed.

"Ah," said the stag, "If you will let me conceal myself I will be off again at the first opportunity!"

The oxen agreed, and the stag stayed there until evening approached. Many of the farm labourers came in with bundles of fodder, but did not see him. The stag was beginning to thank the oxen, but one of them said: "We shall all be glad for you to escape; but our master has not yet been here, and nothing escapes his eyes."

Shortly after the farmer himself came in to look at his men feed the cattle. He happened to look down, and saw the stags horns sticking out of the straw. He immediately raised a hue-and-cry, and killed the poor stag.

"Nobody looks after a man's affairs so well as he does himself."

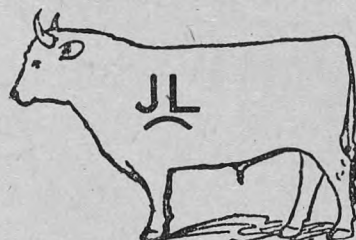

Why is a lady's belt like a road sweeper? Because it gathers up the waist (waste)

Why is a coward like butter on a hot day?

Because they are both ready to run.

Chapter Of Accidents

A chapter of accidents befel the passenger trains, on the Grand Trunk Pacific Tuesday, fortunately unattended by loss of life or even serious injury to any person. Near Winter the westbound train left the tracks, the whole train from the tender to back coach. Apart from the shake-up and a few minor scratches no one is reported hurt.

The eastbound train was requisitioned to convey the westbound passengers on their journey, arriving at Chauvin, shortly after ten o'clock. To convey the eastbound passengers a train was made up at Biggar and rushed forward. This train left the track before reaching its object. Thus the ocials have the herculean task of lifting two trains on to the track before trac can be resumed.

INSURANCE

The Cheapest Rate for Farm Buildings is quoted at Forty Cents per $100 per annum; Three years for $1.20 per $100; and this rate is only quoted by the WAWAESA MUTUAL ASSURANCE COMPANY. This is a purelyfarmers' company, and handles only farm property

INSURE NOW AND FEEL SAFE

Canadian Pacific Railway Lands: Call in and see the price list: 20 years terms, one-tenth cash payment with application; no further payment of capital until the fourth year. Interest at six per cent per annum. If the necessahy improvements are executed in the first year, the interest will be reduced to two per cent for two years. This is a good proposition, and these lands are being rapidly absorbed. Do not delay until too late, as these lands will be turned over again at a big profit.

Hudsons Bay Lands. I have the latest prices on all the holdings of the Hudsons Bay Company and am ready to quote you at any time. The terms are:-8 equal payments with interest at seven per cent per annum. The prices are now down to a very low figure, and these lands are sure to turn out to be a good business proposition. Values will soar again, and the H.B. Lands are mighty good buying at present quotations. That quarter alongside your own will make a fine addition to your farm; and, believe me, it is better to be in on the ground floor when you buy.

Loan Companies have all kinds of Money to Loan on Improved Farm Property, Fist Mortgage. I am advised by one of the most reliable firms that their great concern at the present time is to find sufficient applications to take up this surplus money. Interest at eight per cent. Five or ten year terms. No commissions charged to the Mortgagor; and the costs of obtaining same were never so low as at the present time. If you are interested. call or write; but remember that there is no shortage of cash for this purpose.

ARTLAND ARGUS

The Artland yards presented a very animated scene last Tuesday week, 28th October.

Shipment of cattle were on a scale never before seen at this point. This is a most satisfactory feature and, we trust that future operations will continue large, and be a source of profit and benefit to all concerned.

The actual cars loaded with fine Artland, numbered no less than 40, comprising seven cars from Ribstone thirteen from Chauvin, and the balance of twenty from Artland with 398 head.

This shipment marked an important day for the district generally and very particularly so far as Artland in so far as it has beyond question demonstrated that our ranges around here can produce the goods, and the power to maintain that position with an increasing expansion,

We understand that some of our local shippers contemplate sending out six more cars of good stuff before the close of the season.

Wheat has also been going out pretty well. Mr Lavergne informing us that five cars were billed through the week before last.

The cattle shippers form this point were Ervin Neil, A. W. Robinson, Jas Semple, Garfield Lawson, L. M. Cayford and Harry Smith.

The total amount of live stock shipped out from Artland for this season already amounts to thirty-six cars. We would have liked a chat with LordShaughnessy on Artland platform

RURAL MUNICIPALITY OF MANITOU LAKE, NO. 442.

Notice

Notice is hereby given, in accordance with the provisions of the Stray Animals' Act, that the period during which Herd Law remains in force in this Municipality, is further extended until the 20th day of November, 1919.

Dated at Marsden, Sask., this 21st day of October, 1919, when those cattle were off to Chicago. Pleasant to have impressed that worthy man with the stir and bustle of that scene. He so dearly loved to level the gems of his pungent sarcasm at us. And by us we mean the grain men, the cattle men and the traders of Ribstone. Chauvin and Artland—places typical of hundreds of others strung along on steel with the lashings of optimism all the way from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

H. D. SWARBRICK, Secretary.

All in the same boat, holding good cards and bound to win.

Nice to tell our friend that he yet would live to see the G.T.P. receiver get the "chuck" and the patient share-holder receive an interim div., that would have been fine for his lordship to put in his pipe.

The practical man will not hesitate a moment over investing in Victory Bonds.

It is sad to see the ruin of former prosperity, such as that old derelict, former home of good grub and good cheer for the traveller, presents that unhappy building next the Post Office, now a Court of Justice or a Church as occasion may require.

We met an acquaintance, who, after throwing off his load of wheat "was munching a slice of bologna to the tune of a bottle of sham beer that odious hypocrite known as "two per cent."

Where are those pleasant places of old, where the best of grub was liberally dispensed by the jolliest of people?

Verily the Artland accommodation for the teamster, the drummer, the grotesque, This merry little hamlet takes the "macaroon."

As the matter stands at present the public must depend upon the good nature and kindness of a private resident and his wife.

Needless to observe, the interests of the place are being prejudicially affected.

Your attention is called to a further extension of the period of Herd Law as announced in another column.

ROBERT JUKES.

Note by Editor, Chauvin Chronicle—We are at one with our estimable editor of the Artland Argus in seeking to give accurate information. In the matter of the number of cars shipped in the large shipment of last week, as reported, there discrepancies. In the first instances, upon official information we reported forty-eight cars. As three carloads of cattle got away from the herders, these at the last minute and then unknown to the press) did not form part of the train. Mr Jukes report seems to err the other way, according to the results of our enquiry of the G. T.P. at Chauvin. The figures thus obtained were Ribstone 7, Chauvin 17, Artland 21, total 45. Perhaps the shippers will get this right when they sell the stock and pay the freight charges.

MANITOU LAKE G.G.

A meeting of the Manitou Lake Grain Growers was held at the Brady School, Friday October 31st Mr Howells, the speaker for the evening was unavoidably prevented from being in attendance, but an interesting debate on the Farmers' Platform filled the evening in a very instructive and interesting manner. Messrs J. W. Coe, George Lawson, James McKague and Arthur Rose are to be congratulated on their oratorical developments. The meeting heartily endorsed the policy of nominating a Farmers Candidate in readiness for the election.

J. W. Coe, also one of the speakers that evening, was elected as the delegate to attend the convention at Wilkie, November 7th 1919

AN AMERICAN'S IMPRESSIONS OF CLYDESDALES AS SEEN ON 'CRAIGIE MAINS' SCOTLAND

An American visitor has recently visited Craigie Mains, where 'I unexpectedly faced what any Clydesdale lover would admit the finest sight in the animal kingdom, Bonnie Buchlyvie at the bridle. Never in the draft horse world have I seen such lofty and perfect carriage and such grace of going as this thirteen-year-old champion possesses. I have dreamed of a neck set high on sloping shoulders, sufficiently high to make the coarse, cartilaginous crest unnecessary for symmetry of line, but never until Bonnie Buchlyvie have I found the realization of this ideal. The throat springs from the shoulder a full eight inches above the shoulder joint, and the axis of the neck is so nearly perpendicular to the beautiful scapular slope that the head towers is not a big horse as compared to the continent breeds. He would weigh about 1900 pounds now, but is in a 'hard-as-nails' shape that would easily accept an additional 200 pounds before reaching the average fleshing of our show horses. Perhaps the best proof of Bonnie Buchlyvie's greatness lies in his progeny. Both reserve champions at the Royal, the yearling Craigie Bay and the two-year-old filly Craigie Sunray, were by him, while a yearling filly as yet unnamed that ran in one of the paddocks at Craigie Mains had even a sweeter carriage limning the hair. But the treat really lay in viewing the 1919 foals, Among the mares at the farm for service to him were several with foals at side from his loins. 'Peas in a pod' is an unjust comparison for these youngsters, whose graceful uprightness and supple going were indelibly stamped by their famous sire. Every one was a bay, every one had the shoulder and pastern so patently his bequeathal, and every one had the alert response to the surroundings that measure the keenness of living. Yet they were not nervous, were not easily frightened and were not shy. They presage the kind of animal that really takes an interest in the work done. For the next two years Bonnie Buchlyvie goes to breeders' associations at 50 guinea service fees, half to be paid at service and half when the mare is in foal. Mr. Kilpatrick, proprietor of Craigie Mains is to have the option on every foal born at established price, to be arranged with each association. During Bonnie Buchlyvie's absence, Craigie Litigant, Brydon Shield and Cawder cop winner for 1918 will head the stud. Already 200 namees are booked for him, and the next two years should give him his opportunity to establish himself. Probably the best mare at the Mains is Craigie Sylvia. She is by Apukwa, he by Hiawathia and has the turn of top, mass of middle and greatness of going that completely fill the eye and satisfy the ideal. Although one of doors at all times, and with a three-day foal at side, she trotted the pasture with the life and spirit of a horse newly released from stable. Probably next to the Royal winner Rosalind by Dunure Footprint, she was the finest mare I saw in Britain, and there is no saying what their relative standing would be had the foal been a litter older so that the loss of bloom due to parturition had been overcome. Another great mare is the big-framed Favorite Queen, by Royal Favourite and out of nis, eeeeeedaoby oona rbr, tud of Craigie Litigant, and now at seventeen has a matchless foal by Bonnie Buchlyvie."

KERNELS

The practice of burning stubble and weeds should be resorted to only in extreme cases where the stubble and weeds are so heavy that if ploughed under they would leave the soil too open and result in drying out.

The large fleshy root systems of leguminous plants, by their decay add organic matter and available nitrogen to the soil, and also improve its bacteriological condition. More things depend on bacteria in the soil than is generally recognized.

It is a curious fact that the men attending the pans in the salt works are entirely exempt from sholera, small pox, scarlet fever, and influenza.

Some Striking Figures Of Savings Deposits From Bank Statement For August

A total of $1,196,632,931 in savings bank deposits is a gratifying report that many of the countries which have emerged from war would be glad to report to-day. This is the position of Canada as revealed in the Bank statement for August.

The amount is $181,921,060 better than the same month last year, notwithstanding the fact that a good part of it was transferred to last years $21,540,778 better than July of this year.

This is a promising outlook for the Victory Loan campaign which is at present being carried on. If the depositors in Canada's savings banks were to say the word, they could subscribe the $300,000,000 asked nearly four times over. The success of the present effort should be overwhelming.

lyn to marry him, and though she said "No," at the time, his mother and sister think that she could be won over in time to change her mind.

'Still, when I tell him that Mr. Tom is alive there will be no kick coming from Mr. Bert—he's only been like a kind of substitute in a football match when one of the star players gets knocked out for a bit; when the star gets his wind he comes back into the game and the other fellow just drops out, and nobody worries about him.'

But, Mrs. Enderby will worry, and it's very awkward after a talk I had with her to-day, that I should have to take an active part in hastening a probably inevitable disappointment for all the people at the Dingle. Mrs. Enderby will try to be glad Tom's alive, and she will be nice to Miss Raye, but in the bottom of her mind she will have a grievance against me, and things will never be quite the same again. I BBBBBBwish I had had this letter before I went up this morning—it would have made rather a strenuous time, but it would have been all over by now. As it is I have promised to call for Miss Raye at the school on to Mrs Bigley—it's the last day's tea-ching, and Miss Raye is coming down here for a visit—but I cannot call for her without letting them know about Tom first."

'Suppose, Dad' suggested Tad, 'that you write to Jim Hardie and tell him all about it, and ask him to tell Mr. Enderby on Friday night, and then it will get to Mrs Enderby in a kind of round about way and you need not be mixed up in at all, and you can tell Miss Raye as you drive home.'

'You are very ingenious, Tad' and a smile flickered for a moment on his father's anxious face, 'but if there's a nasty thing to be done, it may as well be done first as last, and I hate roundabout ways. I shall go to the Dingle myself on Friday. Bert and Tom were very great friends and Bert ought to be a man about it, and if his mother chooses to think I have treated them badly, why, well, she must, and I must put up with it—and I suppose I can call at the school afterwards and tell—'

'I'd like to do that part of the telling interrupted Tad 'You see, that was properly my job only Miss Raye side-tracked me just when I got started—how's a fellow to know which is the right end of a stick when a girl acts up like that?'

'You need not apologize, Tad, for your inexperience,' replied his father with a little amusement at the puzzled earnestness of, Tad's question 'the diagnosing of a woman's affections still finds me only a neophyte.'

'Well, I am not a never fight—if that's what you mean, Dad, and I won't do that other thing to anybody, but I should not like Mr Tom to think I had not kept my promise.'

'Well, seriously, Tad, I believe it would be much better for you to call for Miss Raye—easier both for her and for yourself, but I don't see—' and there was a long pause during which Tad, who had sat down some time before, forked over his tousled hair with both hands in search of inspiration. At last it came—

'Say, Dad—' and another pause, 'Say Dad, for know the Enderby 'Say, Dad, you know that the Enderby 'Say, Dad, you know that the Enderby often use Mr Tom's mare and buck-board for getting around, and Miss Raye sometimes drives her to school—well—suppose you drop a note to Miss Raye tomorrow and ask the mail man to leave it at the Dingle as he goes by, and you can ask her to take the buckboard to school on Friday, and say you will drop me off somewhere as you go to Mrs Bigley's and that I will drive her down as you find that I have another visit to make—'

Tad's suggestion did not offer much easing up to the parson for his own visit to the Dingle, but after talking over with his wife far into the night the whole wonderful story of Tom's escape with its complications of anxiety to himself, it seemed the most promising solution or a problem so full of possibilities of both joy and sorrow to those whom fortune had brought within the circle of its activities. (To be continued next week)

Hot water is one of the best known natpral agents for relieving soreness in horses due to sprains, bruises and excessive pressure of the animals body. Salt and soda are healing disinfecting agents. A little alum and tannic acid, the juice from the bark or leaves of oak or willow trees, will heal and toughen the skin and should be applied with warm water.

A FORCE WHICH OVERCOMES SELFISHNESS

Shorsighted is the philosophy which counts on selfishness as the master motive of human action. It is blind to facts of which the world is full. It sees not the present, and reads not the past aright. If you would move men to action, to what shall you appeal? Not to their pockets, but to their patriotism, not to selfishness, but to sympathy. Self-interest is, as it were, a mechanical force—potent, it is true; capable of large and wide results. But there is in human nature what may be likened to a chemical overwhirls; to which nothing seems impossible, "All that a man hath will he give for his life"—that is self-interest. But in loyalty to higher impulses men will give even lift.

It is not selfishness that enriches the annals of every people with heroes and saints. It is not selfishness that on every page of the world's history bursts out in sudden splendor of noble deeds or sheds the soft radiance of benignant lives. It was not selfishness that turned Gautama's back to his royal home or bade the Maid of Orleans lift the sword from the altar; that held the Three Hundred in the Pass of Thermopylae, or gathered into Winkelried's bosom the sheaf of spears; that chained Vicent de Paul to the bench of the gallery, or brought little starving children during the Indian famine, tottering to the relief stations with yet weaker starvelings in their arms. Can it religion, patriotism, sympathy, the enthusiasm for humanity, or the love of God—give it what name you will: there is yet a force which overcomes and drives out selfishness; a force which is the electricity of the moral universe; a force beside which all others are weak. Everywhere that men have lived it has shown its power and to day as ever, the world is full of it. —HENRY GEORGE
